Guest Speaker

Joe Thomas, Director, Sussex County Emergency Operations Center, presented an overview of the Sussex County Emergency Operations Center and the types of emergencies they are responsible for handling. Mr. Thomas advised that the Center has been at its present location since 2008 and consists of four divisions: (1) Emergency Management, (2) Fire and Ambulance, (3) Local Emergency Planning Committee, and (4) Communications Support. Mr. Thomas stated that Sussex County's population in 2010 was 192,747 compared to over 200,000 today, with approximately 8,000,000 visitors to the County each year. Although agriculture remains the County's number one industry, tourism is the second largest.

Mr. Thomas explained the new Smart911 system which has been adopted in the State of Delaware. This new system provides the exact location of the caller from a mobile device. While the previous system depended on the caller to provide all of the information during an emergency, Smart911 is designed to speak for the caller. In order to utilize the Smart911 system, information must be logged in to the system via computer and email address. Sign-up is free. Information is stored in a secure national database for use by the emergency management team and first responders. The system stores vital information relative to the person/household, i.e. phone(s), address, vehicle(s), emergency contacts, pets/animals, and much more, which allows for quicker response time to an incident. Mr. Thomas distributed fliers regarding the Smart911 system and noted that the system is active in almost every state in the United States.

At the conclusion of Mr. Thomas' presentation, a tour of the Sussex County Emergency Operations Center was provided.
